Providence Health & Services, Southern California, is celebrating unprecedented growth, recognition for top quality health care, a vibrant employee culture where new ideas are encouraged and a drive to help the underprivileged – all with an eye toward the future.

With nearly 13,000 employees and extraordinary teams of physicians and volunteers, we remain committed to our core values of Respect, Compassion, Justice, Excellence and Stewardship. These goals, defined by our founding Sisters more than 150 years ago, feed philosophies that result in high-quality care for our patients, a broad spectrum of outreach programs for our community and a focus on recruiting and retaining dedicated employees.

The Mission to serve is the cornerstone of Providence. This past year, we provided more than $183 million in community benefit programs to our neighbors reaching out to nearly 231,000 people*.

Folded into this philosophy is a growing effort to help protect the planet by incorporating “green” initiatives, including environmentally friendly construction and extensive recycling.

Together, quality care, dedicated employees, compassion for our neighbors and respect for the environment mean healthier communities and a healthier future.

We offer a wide array of free or low-cost outreach programs for those in need, from primary care clinics and health screenings, to exercise and health education classes, to mental health counseling and telephone visits for seniors. In all, Providence’s community benefit programs touch the lives of nearly a quarter million people each year.
